

	Dating and Paleoclimate	Australopithecines	Early Homo	Homo erectus	Pleistocene Homo
100	___ is a form of an element useful to paleoanthropologists for dating and estimating paleoclimate	The term hominin is a distinction between humans and apes at the taxonomic level of the ____	Early Homo lived during the ___ and used the first stone tools, known as ___	Homo erectus had a brain size that was ___ cc, within the range of H. sapiens	The dental arcade of apes is shaped like a U, the arcade in humans is shaped like a _____
200	Absolute dating methods, also known as ___ provide a date in years	Aust. have a bowl shaped pelvis, valgus knee and stable ankle joint, so the principle adaptation distinguishing hominins from other apes was ___	Early Homo has a brain size that is bigger than Australopithecines. It increases from ___ to ___ cc.	Homo erectus has cranial architecture that suggests they did this ___ with their teeth	The Middle Pleistocene was from ___ to ___ years ago
300	When a site is less than 40k years old, ___ is the preferred dating method	Hominins split from other ape populations at the end of the ___, when the climate was more _____	Early Homo is often referred to by two species names, ___ and ___	The early African erectus fossil _____ is known as H. ergaster, who lived ___ years ago in _____	These MP Hominins from Spain live ___ years ago and probably gave rise to Neandertals _____
400	_____ is one of many methods for estimating paleoclimate	Hominin jaws are distinct from other apes because they have lost these traits: ___	Early Homo was fully bipedal but it's postcranium resembles Australopithecines in its ___ arms and ___ stature	Homo erectus shows evidence of behavioral plasticity, including _____	Neandertals demonstrate cold adaptations including _____
500	Oxygen isotopes ___ and ___ can be used to indicate temperature and this _____	Robust and Gracile Australopithecines are primarily different because of _____	The earliest hominin fossil found outside of Africa is from ___ at ___ years ago	Three new life stages were introduced during the time of H.e. or later. They are _____	The hobbit has a stature of ___ feet and a brain size of _____. It live in ____ Around ___ years ago.